

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A molding remover system for efficiently removing door molding from a vehicle without requiring removal of the door glass. The molding remover system includes a handle and a shaft member extending from the handle. The shaft member has an engaging portion that extends toward the handle. The engaging portion is formed for engaging a retainer clip attaching a window molding to a door frame.